Dear Mr. Noe:

When I visited the Numismatic Society a couple of years ago, I was interested in seeing the little cardboard trays in which you keep your coins, and Mr. Bellinger has just brought me three specimens that he had as samples. These three measure approximately 1" x 1-1/2", 1-1/4" x 1-7/8", and 2-3/8" x 2-7/8".

I write to ask whether you have other sizes in use, or whether you think that other sizes are desirable as a result of your experience? Also I should like to know who makes them, and roughly the price. The price no doubt varies from time to time, according to the cost of labor and materials, but a rough idea of the cost per hundred would be helpful.

Yours very sincerely,

Andrew Keogh

Dear Mr. Keogh:

Our coin boxes run in size up to  $4\frac{1}{4}$  inches wide, varying from the size that you mention in  $1\frac{1}{8}$ " size to 3" and then  $\frac{1}{4}$ " size to 4".

In recent years we have been having T. James Clarke 38 Charles Street, Jamestown, N. Y. make them for us. The price varies according to quantity and size and should run anywhere from a little over a cent to two and a fraction cents each. He has several sizes of the smaller boxes in stock. These vary slightly from our sizes. If you should write him, he can send you samples and quotations and you can undoubtedly make use of his stock boxes, which would cost you less if you put in a special order. Our large size boxes are for medals. I guess this answers all your questions. I remain

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Noe:

Miss Elisabeth Merklein, assistant to the Curator of our Collection of Goetheana, wants very much to see how you preserve and catalogue medals, of which there are a goodly number in our Goethe Collection.

I have, therefore, ventured to give her a note of introduction to you which she will present on Monday next, November 7.

I ask for her any advice that you can give her with regard to the preservation and utilization of your great collection of medals and coins.

Yours very sincerely,

Andrew Keogh

My dear Mr. Wood:

We are very grateful for your further suggestions concerning your experience with coin boxes and your suggestions for our practice. We shall send for samples at once.

Mr. Keogh, who is away on a five months' leave, will be still more appreciative of your thoughtfulness when I send this letter on to him.

Yours very sincerely,

Howland Wood, Esq., Curator

Gentlemen:

It is with great pleasure that I have added to our numismatic collection the four depression tokens which you so graciously sent us through our mutual friend, Professor Bellinger of Yale.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. Owen
